

Scripta Islandica

Call for papers

Scripta Islandica is a peer-reviewed international journal for West Nordic research. It has been published since 1950 and is based at the Department of Scandinavian Studies, Uppsala University.

As one of the leading forums for discussion in the field, the journal welcomes scholarly contributions which encompass, but are not restricted to, the following areas: philology and manuscript studies, archaeology, history, runology and epigraphy, onomastics, historical linguistics, history of religion, literary studies.

Contributions are accepted in the following languages: English, Swedish, Danish, Norwegian, Icelandic, German, and French.

Further information and instructions on the submission of articles, such as formatting principles, can be found at the following URL: <https://www.nordiska.uu.se/island/scripta/forfattare/>

Scripta Islandica is published yearly in December.

The deadline for submission for the 2023 volume (74) is June 1st.

Contributions should be sent to one of the journal's editors:

Lasse Mårtensson (lasse.martensson@nordiska.uu.se)

Veturliði Óskarsson (veturlidi.oskarsson@nordiska.uu.se)

Matteo Tarsi (matteo.tarsi@nordiska.uu.se)